VI- Reading Comprehension (80 Marks)

Read the following passage carefully, and then answer the questions below:

How do windmills work? The answer to how a windmill works is easy. Its name carries the answer with it; it works by harnessing the power of the wind. The word windmill is made up of two parts “wind “and “mill”. So far, we know what wind stands for, but what about” mill”? A mill is a machine that grinds grain to make flour. So, a windmill uses wind to grind grain. Sounds simple, right? But windmills can do other useful tasks too: they can pump water and even generate electricity.

Such windmills were built years ago. These days we rarely build such windmills. Electric motors can pump water and grind grain much better than windmills. Instead, we use the wind to produce electricity. We call such windmills – wind turbines. In older windmills, the rotating blades turned gears and powered a mill. In modern windmills or wind turbines, the turning of the blades turns a rotor. The rotor is connected to a part called the shaft. As the rotor moves, it also turns the shaft, which is connected to a generator that spins. Then, the spinning generator generates or makes electricity.

Windmills are very important since they provide a way to produce electricity without causing any pollution and is an eco-friendly option for us. Wind is also a renewable source of energy. This means we can never run out of wind energy. We have built many wind farms to take advantage of this. A wind farm is a place where numerous wind turbines are set up to make a lot of electricity. They can be built on land or in the seas and oceans. The largest onshore (on land) wind farm is in China. It is called the Gansu wind farm.

Wind turbines are considered a safe and green source of energy. However, they have disadvantages and can be fatal to wildlife. Birds and bats accidentally hit the enormous blades of these turbines and are killed by the impact. Also, they create loud noise that can be annoying to nearby villages. Therefore, additional research on design options is needed to meet future demand and functionality.

I- Choose the correct answer from a, b, c and d: (6 x 10 = 60 Marks)

30- The tasks ( things) windmills can do:

- a. grind grain
- b. pump water
- c. generate electricity
- d. All of the above

31- According to the passage, ONE of the following statements is NOT TRUE:

- a. Windmills are eco-friendly.
- b. Windmills can be built onshore or in the seas.
- c. Windmills are a non-renewable source of energy.
- d. Windmills produce electricity without causing any pollution.

32- It can be inferred from the passage that wind turbines:

- a. are finite.
- b. are totally safe.
- c. are not dangerous for birds.
- d. are not completely harmless.

II- Answer the following questions: (2 x 10 = 20Marks)

33- What are modern windmills called?

Windmills are called wind turbines.

34- Mention the disadvantages of the wind turbines.

Birds and bats accidentally hit the enormous blades of these turbines and are killed by the impact.

Also, they create loud noise that can be annoying to nearby villages.

VII- Summary Making (60 Marks)

Read the following passage, then do as required:

What is leadership? Can anyone be a good leader? Leadership is defined as the ability of an individual or a group of individuals to influence and guide followers or other members of an organization.

Good leaders should have self-awareness and courage. Truthfulness is an essential trait for leaders. Co-workers should be able to trust their leaders' words. Self-confidence is very important for leaders as it gives them wings to take risks to achieve goals. They also must have the decision-making skill to make decisions for greater good over their personal needs. They should have a vision to turn ideas into actions. Leaders are not born. They are made with perseverance to inspire and guide others to succeed.
