Cherry Blossom time in Japan

- 1 If you go to Japan in March or April you are almost certain to see the Cherry Blossom festivals which take place all over the country every spring. Most people agree that viewing the new blossom on cherry trees has been a favourite Japanese custom since at least the 7th century CE, though some historians claim it began as early as the 3rd century CE. When it first started,
- 5 Japanese people used to gaze at the blossom on the cherry trees, which inspired some of them to write poems. The cherry trees were cultivated for their outstanding beauty. These days, the festival not only marks the beginning of spring, but also the start of the academic year and the financial year. The trees blossom for very short periods, during which time special parties, called hanami, are held. These are parties at which people view the blossoms, socialise and eat
- 10 special foods, such as dango, a chewy snack made of rice flour. Some people take their own food whilst others buy food from street vendors. Parks in the Japanese capital of Tokyo are the most popular places for people to view the cherry blossom, but of course the parks can get very busy. The historical parts of the city of Kyoto are also very popular. For people who don't like noise and crowds of people, there are also quieter places, like the mountains, where they can view the
- 15 blossom. In fact, everywhere in Japan there are cherry trees: in parks, castle grounds, gardens and even in school playgrounds. The blossom of the cherry tree is Japan's national flower and there are more than four hundred types of cherry tree, or Sakura, in the country. However, these cherry trees are different from those elsewhere in the world because they do not produce fruit. The Cherry Blossom festivals are so important to Japanese culture that meteorologists
- 20 are responsible for checking the movement of the Sakura Zensen, the warm weather front which facilitates the blossoming of the trees.

Five days in Nepal

a Sunday

As soon as I woke up, I opened my window and saw the mountains for the first time. They looked amazing! We started our trek after breakfast. Walking uphill was tiring, but downhill was worse. My legs wouldn't stop shaking. We stopped for lunch and at six o'clock we reached our first night's camp.

b

When I got up, I felt fantastic after yesterday's walk! Today was a rest day, so we sat around reading and sleeping before Wednesday's trek.

That first night, I slept very well. Again we started walking straight after breakfast but today it was all uphill. Sometimes breathing was quite difficult. I was very glad when we reached our lodge. There were real beds! Around the lodge, a local festival was taking place. There were traditional arts and crafts on display, and beautifully dressed musicians performing the most wonderful music.

Even though my bed was uncomfortable, I was so tired that I slept really well. This morning we left at sunrise and walked for three hours. After an early lunch, we continued for another three hours, all downhill, until we reached the place we had started from five days ago! It was the end of our trek!

Sadly, we left the lodge with its beds and showers. After about an hour we were lost and asked villagers for directions. An old woman helped us by drawing a map on the ground. Eventually, we arrived at that night's camp late and absolutely exhausted.

MODULE 1: Getting Together

Family Celebrations

Key words

baby shower, crib, expectant, parenthood, pram, replica, separate, silverware, subsequent, transition

Reading

1 Read this article about baby showers in England, and answer these questions.

a Why is the baby shower an important event?

b Why is the baby shower organised by friends or relatives rather than the expectant parents?

The Baby Shower

The baby shower is a tradition that is becoming more and more popular in England. Despite what the name might suggest, the baby shower actually involves giving gifts to new or expectant parents. These gifts are almost always items which are needed to care for the new baby, such as cribs, prams, clothing, or simply toys for the infant. Often, family items, such as clothing or toys which have been inherited from ancestors, are also given. Sometimes silverware, such as silver replicas of toys, are also given to commemorate the birth of the child, though this does not occur if the child is yet to be born. Traditionally, the baby shower is an event for the mother, her female relatives and her friends. However, as the event has evolved it has become more and more common for both sexes to take part, or even for men to have a separate baby shower.

The expectant parents do not organise the baby shower. Instead, it is arranged by a close friend or relative. It is intended to welcome the parents into parenthood. It is also intended to ease this transition, by removing some of the burden placed upon new parents by showing support and friendship. Baby showers are normally only given for the first child, although sometimes smaller events, with fewer gifts, are held for subsequent children.

2 Now answer these questions about the article.

a Why is the name of the baby shower misleading?

b What happens if the baby shower is thrown for new parents, rather than expectant parents?

c What is the purpose of the baby shower?

d What do some people inherit during baby showers?

e Who attends the baby shower?

f Is it common in Kuwait to have a baby shower? Explain.

3 Drawing inferences is like 'reading between the lines'. It is about drawing conclusions based on the details the author provides. In the article, the author states that baby showers for subsequent children tend to be smaller events with fewer gifts. Why might this be?

Writing Notes for a talk

- 1 When you prepare to give a talk or a presentation, it is helpful to make a few simple notes. Read these notes which a speaker wrote when he was preparing a talk.

Introduction

Irish nomads – Travellers
Method of travel
Sold things they made

Differences now

Houses
Language: Gammon
Cars
Children: school / interests

- 2 Now read the talk and underline the parts of the talk the notes refer to. Did the speaker follow the exact order of his notes?

I am going to tell you something about the nomadic people who live in Ireland.

- They are called Travellers or Tinkers and traditionally they used to travel around the country in horse-drawn caravans selling things they had made. They were particularly well-known for making pans and kettles.
- Now more and more Travellers are moving into modern houses and settling down.
- They still travel, usually in modern cars and lorries now, but not as often as in the past. Their children go to school regularly and do the kinds of things children all over the world do: watch TV, listen to music and have their favourite football teams.
- Travellers have their own language, called Gammon, but this is now dying out as their traditional lifestyle is changing.

3 Write your own notes for a talk on a subject you know something about. Follow these steps:

- a Choose a subject you know something about.
- b Plan the structure of your talk in your head. Don't write the whole talk.
- c Write brief notes to remind yourself of the main points that you want to include.

2 As you read this article about tea-drinking habits in China, complete the following graphic organiser.

What I know	What I want to find out	What I learnt
-----	-----	-----
-----	-----	-----
-----	-----	-----
-----	-----	-----

TEA – A DAILY NECESSITY

Today, tea is the most popular drink in the world. It is drunk by more people than either coffee or cocoa and the number of people drinking it is increasing year by year. The cultivation of tea plants began in China over two thousand years ago, and from there its popularity quickly spread, first to Japan and then to the rest of the world. Together with silk and porcelain, tea is still one of China's most important exports.

In China, everyone from taxi drivers to civil servants drinks tea daily. Although people drink it at all times of the day and night, it is especially popular after meals. In warm summer weather, people believe it helps them to keep cool and relax, and this is why there are so many traditional tea-houses in Chinese towns and villages, where local people, especially the elderly, meet regularly and chat with their friends. In many towns, tea-houses open in the late afternoon and quickly fill up with students and business people.

There are several special circumstances in which tea is prepared and consumed. In Chinese society, people show respect to one another by offering a cup of tea. They make serious apologies to others by pouring them tea. In the traditional Chinese marriage ceremony, both the bride and groom kneel in front of their parents and serve them tea as an expression of gratitude for bringing them up well. The parents will usually drink a small portion of the tea and then give the couple a red envelope, which symbolises good luck.

3 Look at the article and the Factfile. Are these True (T) or False (F)? Justify your answers.

- a Tea is not as popular as coffee. ☐
- b 90% of the world's tea is grown in China. ☐

Writing Describing scenes in detail

1 Match descriptions A and B with the postcard scenes below.

A The sea looks deep blue. There are waves coming on to the beach, but the sea looks calm. There is a hill in the background and it doesn't look remote. There are white clouds on the horizon, but we know it is a sunny day because a man is sitting on the beach with a parasol. He is wearing shorts and a T-shirt and looking towards the horizon. There are also two little children behind the man, playing in the sand. They have plastic toys with them and they are also wearing light clothes but have caps on their heads. They look very enthusiastic and joyful. There are no buildings or cars in this photo.

B Starting from the far right, we see a small hill that seems bare. Then there are a few buildings that are far away, but as we look to the left the buildings get taller and nearer and are surrounded by palm trees. The last building is barely showing but looks huge and is directly on the beach. We know that it's nighttime because the hill is dark, the buildings are lit up and the sky is dark blue. There are people sitting on the beach, which looks sandy, or walking along peacefully. There is also a young man helping his little boy build a nice sand castle.

Progress Test 1

Reading

1 Read the following advice about passing your driving test. Underline where the writer reassures and encourages the reader.

Passing your driving test – some simple advice

- Talk to people who have taken their test recently. Get them to tell you about their experience and ask them for their advice.
- Read about what to expect in the test. You can find useful books in libraries and articles on Internet websites.
- 5 ● Don't book your driving test until you feel confident. If you don't feel confident, ask your driving instructor for more practice.
- Try to get a good night's sleep before the day of the test.
- Don't worry if you feel a bit nervous. This can help you concentrate on your driving.
- On the day of the test, arrive at the test centre early. Give yourself plenty of time to relax and prepare yourself mentally.
- 10 ● Turn off your mobile phone. The last thing you want is for someone to phone you just before or actually during the test.
- During the test, drive normally. Everybody makes a few mistakes when they're driving, so don't try to drive perfectly.
- 15 ● If you don't understand something that the driving examiner tells you to do, ask him or her to tell you again.
- If you make a mistake, forget about it and go on driving as well as you can. You won't fail because of one or two small mistakes.
- 20 ● And if you fail, don't get upset. Most learners have to take their test two or three times before they pass.

2 Read the article again and answer these questions.

a How can people who have taken a test already help you?

b How can feeling a bit nervous help you when you take the test?

c How should you prepare yourself mentally?

3 Complete sentences 1-3 with their correct endings.

1 You can find written information about taking a driving test in ...

a the test centre b libraries and on the Internet c encyclopaedias

2 If you don't feel confident about taking the test, ...

a postpone it b never mind and do the test c ask for more practice

3 During the test you should drive ...

a perfectly b slowly c as usual

Language practice

1 Choose the correct verbs in this story.

I got up very early on Tuesday after a long sleepless night. It was the day when I had to take my driving test. I tried to remember all the road signs I (1) (studied / had studied) last night and I (2) (could / managed to) recall most of them. My dad took a day off work to accompany me. We (3) (could / were able to) get there on time despite the traffic. I was extremely worried although I (4) (was / had been) very well-prepared for it. I (5) (waited / had waited) for my turn for about an hour, and during this time, I tried to benefit from the experiences and mistakes of the ones who (6) (came / had come) before me. Finally, my turn arrived. I got into the car and I was asked to park it. I (7) (shouldn't / wasn't able to) remember all the instructions I (8) (was / had been) told, but I (9) (could / managed) to park the car pretty well. I was asked some questions about road signs and I was surprised that I (10) (could / would) answer them all correctly. Four days later, Dad came home, bringing with him my driving licence. I felt very proud for (11) (being able / managing) to pass my driving test the very first time.

MODULE 2: Communication

Communicating

key words

chime, illiteracy, inaccessible, integrate, lifeline, mailbag, transcribe

Reading

- 1 Look at the map and photograph. Where are they from? Do you think communicating is more challenging for people living in places like this?

- 2 Read the article below. Do you think it is a successful postal service?

Letters to the mountains

Although the Internet has been celebrated for its unrivalled success in bringing the world closer together, not everyone in the world has access to a computer. For many people the Internet and sending e-mails are an abstract technology that does not relate to their everyday lives, and instead they favour writing and posting letters in the traditional way. But the postal authorities in Himachal Pradesh, a state in the north of India, have introduced a new service for their customers which integrates traditional mail and e-mail. People write their letters, then deposit them at their local post office. There, they are transcribed and then sent by e-mail to post offices in other parts of the country. Here, the e-mails are printed out and taken by the postman to their final destination.

Some of these letters, however, which are addressed to very remote places, like the Himalayas, have to be taken by hand to their destinations. They are carried by 'mail runners' who travel long distances on foot, often through mountains or other inaccessible areas. These postmen, who wear special uniforms and carry a mailbag and a bell, were introduced by the Indian post office over 150 years ago. There are now over 1600 'mail runners' in the territory of Himachal Pradesh.

There is often an atmosphere of excitement when the chime of a postman's bell is heard in a village, some of which rarely see outsiders due to their distant locations. The runners also often bring news from other villages and from the outside world. Illiteracy is often high these days, so a runner may have the added responsibility of reading the contents of the letter to the recipient, if they cannot read it for themselves. The runners of Himachal Pradesh are therefore clearly more than just a postal service. They are a lifeline between the villages and the rest of the world.

3 Read the article again and answer these questions.

- a In which part of India is Himachal Pradesh?
- b How are people's traditional letters sent by e-mail?
.....
- c Who takes the printed e-mails to the very remote areas?
.....
- d How many of these people are there in Himachal Pradesh?

To the Director of Study Abroad,

Re: Application for the International Exchange Programme

I am writing to apply to join the International Exchange Programme, beginning September 2009. I am currently studying for a BA in Economics at City University and I believe studying abroad will provide an excellent opportunity to enhance my skills. Please find my CV and application form attached. If you require any further information, please feel free to contact me.

I look forward to hearing from you in the near future.

Yours faithfully,

Omar

Dear Omar,

Thank you for your application to our International Exchange Programme. The Study Abroad committee will be spending the next few weeks reviewing everyone's applications. All applicants will receive notification of our final decision by letter on August 31st. In the meantime, if you have any additional questions please contact our Study Abroad Officer at studyabroad@cityuni.com.

While we consider your application, here is a mini-prospectus for you to study further. If you no longer feel this programme is right for you, please inform us as soon as possible.

- Through the International Exchange Programme you are given the opportunity to study for three to twelve months at a university in another country. The academic work you complete abroad will be credited towards your final degree. Students who wish to apply for our exchanges must have at least a grade B average.
- It is a great chance to immerse yourself in the language, lifestyle and culture of another country and to broaden your experience during your studies. You don't have to be a language student to take part and you will receive additional funding to cover travel and accommodation. All other costs must be met by the student.
- New programmes are regularly introduced, so you should contact your chosen department for the most up-to-date information. Programmes currently available include Engineering, Biological Sciences, Computer Science, Economics, History, Law, Mathematical Sciences and Business.

We suggest that you explore their websites. There are also some catalogues available in the Study Abroad Office, Room G09.

We hope you feel this exciting opportunity is right for you. Thank you again for your application and good luck.

Yours sincerely

The Director of Study Abroad,

City University

1 Read the article about the history of ballpoint pens and answer these questions.

a When were the first biros produced?

b How much did the first American ballpoint pens cost?

c In which country were Bic pens first produced?

d How does a ballpoint pen work?

Ballpoint pens: a short history

In the early 1940s, a Hungarian journalist called Laszlo Biro visited a newspaper office. He watched the production process and was amazed at how quickly the printing ink dried on the paper. It was then that Biro decided to design a pen which used quick-drying ink instead of the normal ink which traditional fountain pens used and which took a long time to dry.

In 1943, Laszlo and his brother, who was a chemist, produced the first 'biros'. The pens became an instant success – mainly because the ink dried quickly and they were stronger than normal ink pens, but also because they worked in planes at high altitude. The pens were so effective that they were adopted by the Royal Air Force of the United Kingdom, whose crews found them far more reliable during flights than older fountain pens.

Two years later, an American company produced similar pens, but because of the technology involved, these first ballpoint pens were very expensive, at $10 each.

In 1949, Marcel Bich, who had previously purchased the patent to the Biro pen, produced the first cheap ballpoint pens in France. These 'Bic' pens eventually sold on the American market for only 10 cents each. The Bic company has been successfully making ballpoint pens ever since. So successful was Bich's product that the Bic pen has become a recognised icon of modern industrial design, even appearing in museums and galleries as an object of cultural significance.

The most important part of a ballpoint pen is the ball. As it moves across a piece of paper, the ball revolves in its socket and transfers quick-drying ink onto the paper. This mechanism is very important. If the ball is too tight in the socket, the ball will not move. If it is too loose, the ink will dry up. Ballpoint pens can write in many different situations, but they cannot write upside down, because the ink needs gravity to move down on the ball.

Although the successful design of the ballpoint is generally attributed to Laszlo Biro, many other attempts were made in the years preceding Biro's design. It has even been argued that Galileo Galilei produced a design for the ballpoint pen in the 17th century.

2 Read the article again. Are these statements True (T) or False (F)? Justify your answers.

- a Laszlo Biro was a journalist. ☐
- b 'Normal' pens were more durable than biros. ☐
- c The first American ballpoint pens were not cost prohibitive. ☐
- d Americans could purchase Bic pens for one tenth of the cost of the first American ballpoint pens. ☐
- e The Bic company has ceased production of these inexpensive pens. ☐
- f In a ballpoint pen, ink is conveyed to the paper by the rotation of the ball. ☐

3 Choose the correct answer to these questions.

- a Who produced the first ballpoint pen?
- 1 Marcel Bich
 - 2 Galileo Galilei
 - 3 Laszlo Biro
 - 4 The Royal Air Force
- b Why was the first ballpoint pen produced?
- 1 As a faster and more durable alternative to fountain pens
 - 2 To make lots of money
 - 3 To showcase new technology
 - 4 To help pilots flying at high altitude
- c Ballpoint pens are useful because they...
- 1 are iconic examples of industrial design.
 - 2 can write everywhere.
 - 3 were invented by Galileo Galilei.
 - 4 use rapidly drying ink and can write in most situations.

Writing Interview questions

1 Read interview questions Q1–Q10, then find the appropriate answer for each question in the list A–J below.

Questions

- Q1 Can I start by asking you when you started swimming?
- Q2 When did you take part in your first serious race?
- Q3 Do you remember the outcome?
- Q4 Could you tell me about the first race you took part in as a professional?
- Q5 Can you remember how you felt?
- Q6 Have you ever had an accident in one of the competitions?
- Q7 And how long did you desist from swimming?
- Q8 Did you enjoy this long break?
- Q9 What do you like most about being a swimmer?
- Q10 And finally, can I ask you about your plans for the future?

Answers

- A Yes, excited and at the same time terrified.
- B Yes, it was a competition in a nearby town. I came second in the end.
- C I love the game itself – and it's a good way to keep fit.
- D Actually, yes. It was two years ago. I accidentally broke my leg diving during the warm-up. It was a big disappointment for me.
- E Well, I hope to go on swimming for as long as possible. After that I'd like to be a sports journalist, or maybe a swimming coach.
- F Not really! It was hard for me to wake up every morning, hoping to carry on swimming and knowing that I couldn't do that. However, I kept going to all my team-mates' races to show my support.
- G I had to stop practising for exactly a month.
- H When I was about eight. I was still at primary school, but I took it very seriously.
- I I can't remember exactly, but my father says he remembers taking me to the pool when I was two years old.
- J Yes. My team lost overall, but I came first.

2 Read the interview questions again.

- a How many different question beginnings does the interviewer use?
- b How does the interviewer begin his first and last questions?
- c What does the interviewer ask about in:
 - Q1–8?
 - Q9?
 - Q10?

- 3 Imagine that you are a sports reporter. Write an interview with your favourite athlete. Imagine the questions you would ask and his/her replies. Write about 170-200 words. You may use the questions on page 36 to help you.

MODULE 2: Communication On The Phone

Key words

bin, disposable, pass on, reclaim, sibling

Reading

1 Before reading the table about mobile phones, answer these questions.

a What do people do with their old mobile phone when they buy a new one? Give two possibilities.

b Why is it a good idea to recycle old mobile phones?

What happens to your mobile phone when you are finished with it?

Action	What happens?	Advantage	Disadvantage
Give to friend or younger sibling	Phone is passed on and used again. Easy and friendly way to dispose of unwanted items.	Phone is still used and recycled. Is a good gift.	Could be misused. 'People may call old phone expecting to talk to you.'
Return phone to shop	Phone is returned to company in exchange for discount on new phone model. Shops ask for old phones to be returned when purchasing new ones.	Reduces cost of purchasing upgrade.	Shops don't always have return policy. Phones need to be in full working order.
Throw phone away	Phone is simply binned as rubbish, can end up in landfill. Old phones, which appear broken, are often binned.	Easy and hassle free.	Disposable batteries can damage the environment. Phones can often be restored.
Recycle phone	Phone is handed in at recycling point. Is seen as a preferable alternative to simply binning phones. Phones are cleaned, repaired and recycled.	Prevents waste. Some charities can benefit from phone recycling.	Recycling facilities can be hard to find.
Sell phone to specialist company	Phone is mailed off to specialist companies who clean, repair and recycle all or parts of the phone. May see TV advert for companies who reclaim phones. Second-hand phones often sent to places like Eastern Europe.	Get money in exchange for something you no longer want.	Often don't receive much money for them.

2 Now, read the table. Choose two of the rows in the table and rewrite the information contained therein as a paragraph of text. Use the example below as a guide.

Some people give their old phones to their friends or younger siblings to ensure their phone is not wasted and is still being used. This is a good idea as recycling the phone in this manner prevents waste and provides a good gift. However, problems may arise if people continue to call your old phone expecting to talk to you.

3 Find words with these meanings in the text.

- a a reduction of the usual cost of something

- b merely or just

- c a place where waste material is buried and covered with soil

- d intended to be used once and then thrown away

- e an object that should be used more than once and not thrown away

- f having had a previous owner; not new

- g an act of giving one thing and receiving another

- h a particular design or version of a product

- i to improve

4 Complete the blanks in this extract with information taken from the table opposite.

What did you do with your last phone? Did you just throw it away? Many people do this, because it's easy and (1) ----- free. But, did you know that most of the phones that people simply discard can easily be (2) -----, cleaned and (3) -----? Recycling phones in this manner is a great idea for two main reasons. Firstly, phones can damage the (4) ----- . They can end up in (5) ----- sites where they can be dangerous, especially if the (6) ----- batteries are still in them.

Secondly, there is a huge demand for (7) ----- phones, particularly in poorer countries in Eastern Europe. In these places up to a third of the phones in use are previously owned.

4 Write responses to these situations. The first is given as an example.

- a You have gone to a shop to buy a new phone.

Hello. I'd like to look at your mobile phones please. I need a new one.

- b Your mobile phone is broken and needs repairing. You're visiting a repair shop.

- c You lent your mobile phone to your brother and he lost it. He has come to apologise.

- d Your service provider has incorrectly charged you for calls you didn't make. You are calling their help line to solve the problem.

5 Add the correct question tags to A's statements in these conversations and the correct endings to B's replies.

- a A You've just bought a new mobile, ?

B Yes,

- b A Call me later, ?

B No,

- c A Your phone's black and silver, ?

B Yes,

- d A You don't always use a security number, ?

B No,

- e A You wouldn't use my phone without asking, ?

B Yes,

- f A You couldn't e-mail me the information, ?

B Yes,

6 Complete the following table of questions, affirmative and negative responses. You should phrase questions by using question tags wherever possible.

Question	Affirmative	Negative
We're going shopping later, aren't we?	Yes, we are going shopping later.	No, we're not going shopping later.
You'll make me a cup of tea, won't you?
	Yes, he is looking thinner than he used to.
		No, my uncle doesn't work for my father.
	Yes, of course I can come to your house for dinner.
		No, I can't give you a lift to the mall.
You couldn't help me with my homework, could you?

Writing Arguing a case

- 1 Read the following conversation about the advantages and disadvantages of using a phone. Which speaker is in favour of mobile phones? Which is against? And which is unsure?

- A: I'm so glad I got my new phone. It's got so many great features.
B: Like what?
A: Well, it records video, takes photos and it accesses the Internet. It's amazing.
C: That sounds like a waste of money to me.
B: What do you mean?
C: Well, who needs a phone like that? Honestly, I think mobile phones are pointless.
B: I wouldn't go that far, but I know what you mean. There are some negative things about mobile phones.
A: You're both wrong. Mobile phones are so useful. I can always call my friends, or surf the Internet wherever I am.
B: Yes, that's true, but they're quite expensive.
C: Too right! Mobile phones are a waste of cash. Who wants to be contactable all the time? I feel sorry for businessmen. I bet they don't get any time to themselves nowadays.
B: That's a good point, but being able to contact people is normally beneficial.
A: Exactly. Now businesspeople don't have to stay in the office all day. They can work wherever they want. Besides, there are other uses for mobile phones. What if there's an emergency or something? Then you'd be happy to have a mobile phone.
C: Maybe, but then people have always had accidents and only recently had mobile phones. Doesn't that show that they're unnecessary? I think mobile phones change your life, and not for the better. People spend more time chatting on the phone than talking to their own families. Mobile phones can even cause accidents.
B: What do you mean?
C: Have you never noticed the number of people who talk on their phones when driving? I'm sure that must cause loads of accidents.
A: Hmmm, I don't think they cause that many accidents. I'm sure the advantages outweigh any problems.
B: I'm not sure. Either way, I don't think you need such a flashy phone.

- 2 Now, complete the T-chart below with information from the text and your own ideas.

Mobile phones
Advantages	Disadvantages

3 Write an article for a magazine arguing for either the advantages or disadvantages of mobile phones. Use the notes you took in the previous exercise and your own ideas. Make sure you provide justifications for your argument.

Progress Test 2

Reading

1 Read the article about speech recognition programmes and complete the statements below.

- A Last year, Fahd had a serious car accident, in which he nearly died. Although he survived, he lost the use of his hands in the accident. As a computer programmer, Fahd used to spend all day at work using a computer keyboard. But how has he managed since his accident? Amazingly, although injured, Fahd continues to work as a computer 5 programmer. Using new speech recognition software, Fahd now talks to his computer, and no longer uses a traditional keyboard. However, you don't have to be injured like Fahd to use speech recognition technology. Talking to a computer is quicker than using a keyboard, and everybody would find speaking a more natural way of communicating than writing.
- B 10 The first speech recognition programmes could not change speech into written language but they could obey spoken commands, like 'Close' or 'Save document'. The most modern programmes can recognise continuous speech, but users must read a few test texts to train the programme to understand the sound of their voice. This type of speech recognition programme, which has a very large vocabulary, would only 15 understand the person who had 'trained' it. There are simpler programmes which are able to understand anybody who uses them, but these have only a very small vocabulary. Systems like these are used in telephone information services, where users are given a small choice of words to say.

- a Fahd was injured in
- b Fahd does not use the computer keyboard now; he
- c To communicate with a computer using your voice, you need
- d Users have to train the speech recognition programme to

2 What is the main idea in each paragraph of the article above?

B He can't use his hands. ?
- b A I've been recently studying speech recognition programming.
B ?
- c A I couldn't send Faisal an e-mail yesterday.
B ?
- d A We couldn't play our final football match.
B ?
- e A I haven't slept all night.
B ?

2 Complete the sentences a-d with the appropriate adjectives and their opposites.

A active clear useful precious
B useless passive worthless vague

- a His instructions on how to use the mobile phone were very _____, but I guess the manual will be _____ enough.
- b I think speech recognition programmes are very _____ although some people believe that they are _____ and impractical.
- c Aisha thought that the ring she bought was _____, but a jewellery expert told her that it's fake and _____.
- d Our teacher was satisfied to see us very _____ today in his class, unlike yesterday when we were absolutely _____ and bored.

3 Complete the e-mail that Omar sent to a man who uses the speech recognition programme at work. Use the present perfect simple or the present perfect continuous and since or for.

Dear Mr Bader,

I (1) _____ (work) on a project about the speech recognition programme (2) since / for more than two months. Your nephew Mohammed told me about you and I think your experience would be a great help to my project if you don't mind. I already know that you (3) _____ (be) disabled (4) since / for your unfortunate accident. However, you (5) _____ (not stop) working on your computer (6) since / for you started using the speech recognition programme. I praise your courage in the face of everything you (7) _____ (go) through. I would like you, if you don't mind, to write to me about your experience and your opinion of the speech recognition programme. How long (8) _____ (use) it? (9) _____ (compensate) adequately for the keyboard? What kind of problems (10) _____ (give) you? I would appreciate if you could reply to my e-mail as soon as you can. I'm looking forward to hearing from you.

Omar

4 Underline the incorrect words in these sentences and suggest alternatives.

- a I'm so hungry I could eat a whole grain of chocolate.

- b Nawaf kicked a ball through our window and broke three slices.

- c There's no ink left in my pencil.

- d Don't forget to write a stamp on the envelope.

- 1 Imagine you are Mr Bader. Write a reply of 170-200 words to Omar's e-mail in exercise 3 on page 45.

Think about your experience of using the software. Include some positive and some negative remarks. Provide a thorough analysis and evaluation. Finally, give your overall opinion of the software.

The image shows a 'New Message' window with a toolbar containing icons for Send, Chat, Attach, Address, Fonts, Colors, and Save As Draft. Below the toolbar are fields for 'To:' and 'Subject:'. The main body of the window is a large text area with horizontal dashed lines for writing.

2 Write brief instructions about how to send an e-mail.

- Make them short, clear and straightforward.
- Use negative instructions as well as positive ones.
- Use specific, relevant vocabulary for sending an e-mail.
